Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on December 29, 2003 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Cosman ('725).

As shown in Figure 7, Cosman discloses an interface for association with an electrode with a temperature sensor. The interface includes an input adapted to be connected to the electrode and the sensor and a display screen (731) which shows concurrently an idealized image of the electrode (751) and a second image (742,743) that shows changes in the monitored temperature over time. The second image may be a numeric display (743) or a graphic display.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 3-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Cosman ('725) in view of the teaching of Swanson ('638).

The Cosman display shows both an image of the electrode and a numeric and graphic representation of the temperature being monitored. While Cosman teaches that the system is computer driven, there is no explicit recitation of a storage medium (i.e. memory) or a printer. Also, Cosman does not specifically disclose the use of displays using color or animated images.

Swanson et al discloses an analogous system which includes an RF energy delivering electrode with a temperature sensor for monitoring temperature. In particular, Swanson teaches that a GUI may be used to provide visual images of the electrode. Also, Swanson teaches of the use of a memory to store data (including images) and a printer for printing data (Figure 38). The examiner maintains that the use of any well-known type of image (i.e. numeric, color, animated) would be obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art. Applicant has provided no evidence of criticality or unexpected result associated with the format of the display of data.

To have provided the Cosman system with a memory and printer means for storing and printing the data related to procedures would have been an obvious consideration for one of ordinary skill in the art in view of the teaching of Swanson. The examiner maintains that most computer systems inherently have such a capability, and Swanson fairly teaches the use of such means in an analogous system.

Double Patenting

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claim 1 is rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 4 and 14-19 of U.S. Patent No. 6,273,886. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the current claims are just broader limitations of the patented invention and would read on the patented claims.

Claims 1-7 are rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-14 of U.S. Patent No. 6,358,245. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the current claims are just broader limitations of the patented invention and would read on the patented claims.

Applicant is correct in asserting that the examiner meant to withdraw the double patenting rejection based on US Patent No. 6,464,689 in the Final Office Action of Paper No. 5 (July 9, 2003). The double patenting rejections based on the '886 and '245 patents have been revised above. Basically, each of these patents recites the structure of the instantly claimed invention, in addition to numerous additional elements.
